

our HSEEQ statement

At Fulcrum we will be the foremost energy solutions provider, delivering unparalleled efficiency, reliability and safety, vital to the wellbeing of our customers and communities.

We are committed to being an innovative leader in energy management and to safeguarding our environment for future generations.

Exemplary performance in Health, Safety, Engineering, the Environment & Quality is a catalyst to ensure delivery of a successful quality service promoting continual growth within our company. In support of this policy, we will conduct our business according to the following principles:

We will foster safe, healthy and environmentally responsible behaviours by all employees. We will ensure that all Fulcrum staff are enabled with the ethic to create Health, Safety, Quality and Environmental cultures that are imbedded in the company.

Personal ownership of safety is a fundamental part of working for Fulcrum. Consequently, everyone has an obligation to ensure that their actions never put themselves, their colleagues or the public at risk.

impacts

We will assess and mitigate the potential for affecting our quality of service focusing on the environmental, health and safety implications of all our activities.

business continuity

We will put in place a business continuity management procedure that will meet the requirements of our business. We will achieve this by developing specific plans for all business critical processes and locations, briefing and training relevant personnel and testing the plans on a regular basis.

continuous improvement

We will continuously improve our quality of service through monitoring of integrated health, safety, environmental, engineering and quality performance, including pollution prevention, by setting clear goals and measuring progress against specific performance criteria.

stakeholders

We will proactively communicate with stakeholders (customers, partners, suppliers and communities) regarding the health, safety, engineering, environmental & quality aspects of our operations that may impact them.

compliance

We will develop and implement programmes to assure compliance with applicable environmental, health and safety regulations.

The involvement of all Fulcrum employees, contractors, subcontractors and suppliers is essential to achieve and exceed our customers' expectations.

We are confident that you will all share in our commitment to quality through customer satisfaction, continual improvement and good health, safety and environmental practices.
